If only all the problems could be solved that easily. John Redwood heard of the need for a post box in Coronation Square when he was out calling on people, and had soon persuaded the Post Office to put one in for local residents. John is seen here posting a letter with Councillor Marion Robertson, Mrs Tarr and Mrs Noble two residents of Coronation Square at the newly installed postbox.

Traffic Speeding

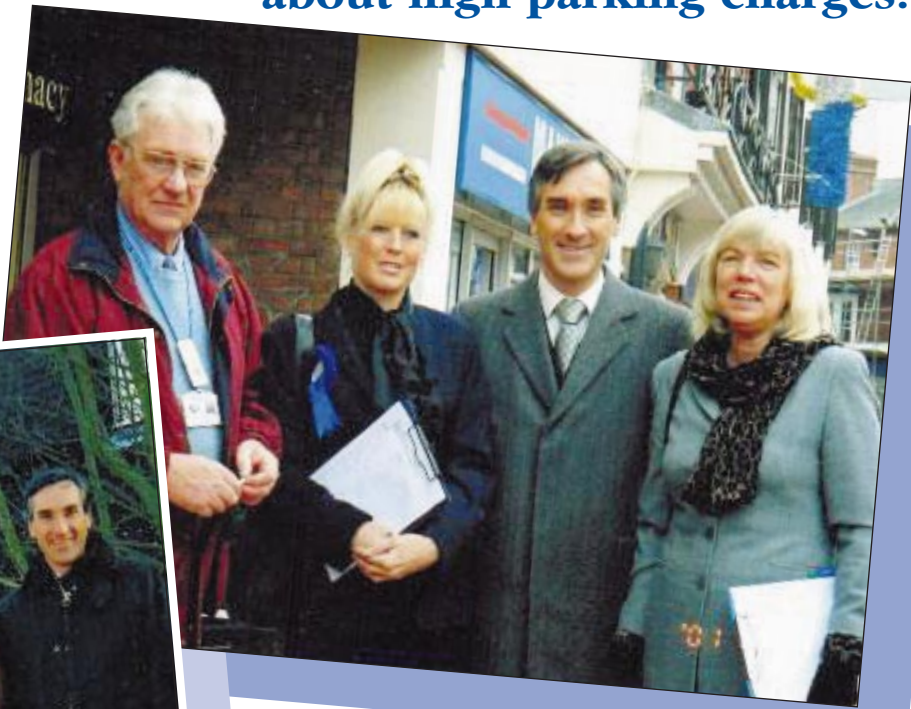

Excessive speed in residential areas is a major concern for many parents with young children. I joined local residents, Councillors Pollock and Patman in Grazeley who were petitioning for a lower speed limit. He said, “I have taken up the question of speeding cars making life difficult along local roads like this one in Grazeley.

I am urging the Council to be more imaginative in finding ways to get children to school. The roads jam rapidly in the mornings when parents struggle to take their children to the school gates before going on to work. I want the Council to use more school buses, estate buses, walking buses and to ease access to public transport for older students to cut the volume of cars in the morning peak. I have also suggested that the Council examines each of the main road junctions around the District to try to improve the flow. In some cases traffic lights should be made part time or their phasing changed. In some cases we need a segregated right hand turning lane, in others left hand turning traffic should be allowed to proceed when safe when straight on traffic is held up by a red light.”

I have helped organise a petition about high parking charges.
